BOUND OVER TO COURT

For a time last Saturday night there promised to be a lively time in the starting of a free for all fight. The victim was Ralph Murdock and he was badly beaten up. The report of the affair is that as Murdock was coming up the street he saw Joe Baker, colored, abusing Beanie Spencer, and he interfered. This raised Baker's anger and he with the assistance of Ike Webster, who he summoned, started in to even with the young man. This trouble all started near the railroad and ended in front of the Field's grocery, where two colored boys assaulted Murdock. He was knocked down and roughly handled and had it not been for the assistance bystanders rendered his life would have been endangered. The report first was that his nose and jaw were broken but the affair did not turn out that bad. After an examination by Dr. J. O. Stewart at the home of Mr. T. B. Andrew, where the boy had been taken, it was found that the jaw was only fractured. Webster is credited with administering the knock out blow after he was placed under arrest by officer Kennon. He stepped to one side and dealt the blow that brought Murdock down. By time the crowd had grown to great proportions and the officer and his prisoner were both threatened, but by the threat of Kennon pulling his gun he was allowed to take Webster to jail. Baker escaped and has not been landed.

Monday morning Webster appeared before Mayor McFarland and was bound over to court on a charge of assault and battery, his bond being placed at $300.

Baker is not only wanted in this case but in the cases of Harry Shull and William Gordon for the theft of some butter from the Townsley creamery several months ago. Shull and Gordon were indicted while Baker was released on his own recognizance as a witness, he having turned states evidence.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

Charles Frayer, 67, of Dayton shot and killed his wife, Henrietta, aged 62, on Saturday morning, and then turned and committed suicide by shooting himself with the same weapon. Death in each case was instantaneous. The aged couple were well known in this county. No motive is known for the terrible deed other than the wife intended going on a visit with relatives in Indiana, the thought of her absence bore heavy on the old gentleman who was an invalid.

Head About to Burst From Severe Bilious Attack.

"I had a severe bilious attack and felt like my head was about to burst when I got hold of a free sample of Chamberlain's Stomach Liver Tablets. I took a dose of them after supper and the next day felt like a new man and have been feeling happy ever since," says Mr. J. W. Smith of Joliff, Texas. For biliousness, stomach troubles and constipation these Tablets have no equal. Price 25 cents. For sale by all druggists.

No trouble to find something for Father, Mother, Sister or brother or anyone you wish to remember at Christmas.

We need not mention the many things to be found here. It is well known that we at all times have a line of such things as is found in first class jewelry stores outside of large cities.

You can't please the boy better than by giving him a watch. We have them from $1.00 up.

Girls too will be pleased with watches. (We have already put away some that will make glad the hearts of some of the fair girls of the neighborhood.) Make an early call and select what you want before the rush of the last days. Come whether you wish to buy or not. You're always welcome and we'll treat you as well as we know.

TWADDLE LOST HIS ARM

The name of John Twaddle was added to the long list of corn shredder victims last Saturday morning. The right hand was crushed to a pulp and the arm had to be amputated just above the wrist.

The victim of the accident was assisting D. W. Cline, owner of the machine, shedding some fodder on the Floyd Harrison farm, four miles east of town.

Like many other such cases no reason can be given as to how Twaddle came to put his hand near the fatal spot. Cline was assisting in the feeding at the time and by means of the safety arrangements succeeded in stopping the machine before Twaddle's arm was drawn in. There was no way to release the hand immediately and the machine had to be taken apart which required over half an hour. During this time Twaddle suffered great pain but remained conscious. Dr. J. O. Stewart of this place and Dr. Coldbrook of Selma arrived by the time the man was released. Upon examination it was found that amputation was necessary and the injured member was amputated just above the wrist. The operation was performed by Dr. Stewart, assisted by Dr. Coldbrook.

Mr. Twaddle is about 28 years of age and is single making his home with his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Henderson.

Latest reports are that the man is improving as nicely as could be expected.

Mr. John Galvin of the Jamestown Journal, and Miss Mamie Hedrick, of the same place were married some time ago in Xenia by Squibb Barnes. The announcement comes as quite a surprise to the friends of the couple.

When wanting good vegetables and fruits see Marshall. Read this list: Oysters, quart 25 cents. Flap crackers, 3lb. 25 cents. Bananas, dozen 10 cents. Apples, per peck 25 cents. Oranges, extra large 30 cents. California Grapes, per lb. 15 cents. Jersey Sweet Potatoes, pk. 40 cents. Pure comb honey, 10 and 15 cents. Danish cabbage, lb. 2 cents.

Quite a neat little surprise was given Mrs. Mary Duffield Tuesday evening, when friends and neighbors gathered to remind her that she had reached another birthday. The evening was spent in pleasant conversation and delightful music by the phonograph, after which the company dispersed wishing Mrs. Duffield many happy returns of the day.

When you want a pleasant purgative try Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They are easy to take and produce no nausea, griping or other disagreeable effect. For sale by all druggists.

THE NEXT JUDGE.

Now that the Congressional question is settled the attention of the politicians is directed to the selection of a successor for Judge Scroggy. Reports are current that a number of attorneys and politicians were in Columbus Tuesday to see Governor Herriek as to the appointment of Attorney Charles Kyle of Xenia. It is stated that Mr. Kyle had the indorsement of 18 members of the Central Committee and the great Dayton politician, Dr. J. E. Lowes. It seems that the Governor gave the politicians every assurance that Mr. Kyle would be appointed in March. It was expected that the contest for the Judgeship would be a warm one as there were several candidates mentioned for the place. Mr. Kyle ran for the same office against Judge Scroggy about six years ago but was defeated.

THE STOCK SHOW.

At the International Live Stock Show held in Chicago last week the Greene County stockmen brought home a good list of prizes. The show is said to have been the best that was ever known among stockmen. From this township were three herds of cattle, Meadow Brook Herd of Polled Angus cattle, owned by D. Bradfute and Son, Andrew Bros. Red Polled cattle and F. B. Turnbull with some Red Polled cattle, this being his first year in the show ring with this breed.

The Meadow Brook herd won first Grand Champion, making the third year in succession that they had won this prize. Other prizes were two champions, four firsts, two seconds, one third, two fourths, one fifth, two sixths, one seventh and one eighth.

Mr. Turnbull on his Red Polled cattle won second on his two year old steer, second on yearling steer, first on steer calf, first on herd and reserve champion on Red Polled steer.

It was expected by many sportsmen that there would be hunting on last Monday but such was not the case after the state game warden put his interpretation on the new law. The law only permits 20 days of hunting and this time expired on the fourth of December at midnight.

—Strayed White sow weighing between two and three hundred pounds some time Monday night. Anyone having knowledge of same will be paid for their trouble by notifying W. H. Strain.

—Peninsular ranges are wonderful bakers and cooks. The supply hardly equals the demand. Better see them at Kern & Hastings Bros.

At Whitehall farm last Friday evening Joseph Kildow of Dayton lost his left arm while feeding a corn shredder. He was just finishing the work when the accident happened. His hand was completely cut off and found in the mow. A wife and little child are dependent on him for a living. Yellow Springs News.

A BABOON SWITCH TENDER.

Until quite recently there was a baboon acting as a switch tender on one of the railroads in South Africa. He was a powerful animal, nicknamed Ceese, and was the property of a native switchman. He had been taught to turn the switch at points while his master looked on, but he soon showed such intelligence in the work that he came to do it alone, locking the rod and other details as well as a man. The engineers did not object to his ministrations and had great confidence in his ability. He would often jump on the shifting engine as it passed on its way to move cars about the yard, but only after he had opened the switch for it. But as soon as the story of the baboon's work came to the ears of the officials they were forced to "bounc" Ceese for fear of popular indignation among the patrons of the road, who might object to their safety being in the hands of a baboon.

Largest Motor in the World.
The largest motors in the world are in use in the huge forests of Canada, where they are used to drag logs over the snow and rough roads. They were specially designed for the purpose by a Chicago man. One of these machines is capable of dragging a train of 200 tons weight of logs at a speed of twelve miles an hour. It is the only machine in existence which will draw a heavy load through three feet of snow and over stumps and logs a foot in height. It is twenty-five tons weight and 200 horsepower. It travels on four runners, with a traction wheel in the center weighing seven tons. The machinery is enclosed in a boxlike affair, giving the motor a somewhat strange appearance as it makes its way along forest roads.

By Way of a Hint.
The man who reads other people's literature and forgets to return it happened to find his friend busy with paste and scissors.
"Ha, ha!" said the caller, "going to keep a scrapbook, are you?"
"Yes," was the unsimiling reply.
"I think I'll manage to keep it. Nobody ever wants to borrow scrapbooks, you know."

Try The Herald for Up-to-date Job Work

Every housekeeper should know that if they will buy Defiance Cold Water Starch for laundry use they will save not only time, because it never sticks to the iron, but because each package contains 10 oz.—one full pound—while all other Cold Water Starches are put up in 3 1/2 pound packages, and the price is the same, 10 cents. Then again because Defiance Starch is free from injurious chemicals. If your grocer tries to sell you a 12-oz. package it is because he has a stock on hand which he wishes to dispose of, before he puts in Defiance. He knows that Defiance Starch has printed on every package in large letters and figures "16 ozs." Demand Defiance and save much time and money and the annoyance of the iron sticking. Defiance never sticks.

A Good Way
to please careful housekeepers is to give honest weight. Oh, we don't say that all butchers don't do this. But we cannot help occasionally overhearing our lady friends when they get to telling their experiences.

Another Good Way
to please is to supply only the best meat. If you trade with us you will learn just what we mean by these two "ways." QUALITY and QUANTITY will a little more than you expect.

A Teacher's Testimony.

Hinton, Ky., Nov. 26 (Special)—It has long been claimed that Diabetes is incurable, but Mr. E. J. Thompson, teacher in the Hinton school, has pleasing evidence to the contrary. Mr. Thompson had Diabetes. He took Dodd's Kidney Pills and his cure. In a statement he makes regarding his cure Mr. Thompson says:

"I was troubled with my kidneys for more than two years and was treated by two of the best doctors in this part of the state. They claimed I had Diabetes and there was little to be done for me. Then I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills and what they did for me was wonderful. It is entirely owing to Dodd's Kidney Pills that I am now enjoying good health."

Many doctors still maintain that Diabetes is incurable. But Diabetes is a kidney disease and the kidney disease that Dodd's Kidney Pills will not cure has yet to be discovered.

His Essay on Pants.

A boy has been suspended for reading the following essay on pants:

"Pants are made for men, and not men for pants. Pants are like molasses—they are thicker in hot weather and thinner in cold. The man in the moon changes his pants during the eclipse. Don't you go to the panty for pants; you might be mistaken."

"Men are often mistaken in pants. Such mistakes make breeches of promise."

"There has been much discussion as to whether pants are singular or plural. Seems to us when men wear pants they are plural, and when they don't wear pants it is singular."

"Men go on a tear in pants, and it is all right, but when the pants go on a tear it is all wrong."—Pittsburg Bulletin.

SOME FAMOUS DOUBLES.

Striking Counterparts of Louis Napoleon and Louis Philippe.

The Emperor Napoleon III. had a double of about the year ago on the contractor for public works during the second empire. His name has escaped my recollection. He had also a double for soldiers' coats and uniforms, and he kept his stores at the old Hippodrome after the lease to a circus company fell in. His likeness to the emperor started me the first time I saw him. I scanned him more closely I saw that he was not Louis Napoleon risen from the grave. No double will bear scrutiny, however well made up, as this particular one would have been. He knew of the resemblance I had noticed and gloried in it. The Comte de Paris also had a double, or what looked one at a distance. The likeness, strong enough to have been the pivot of a tragedy of errors, disappeared greatly when he took off his hat. The Comte de Paris had a pointed head like the German emperor's; the person I speak of as resembling him had a full forehead projecting near the roots of the hair.

I often saw old and young ladies extremely like Queen Victoria. The former mostly came from Frankfurt or parts of Franconia, near the duchy of Coburg. The sister of the late Mrs. Moses Levy of the Daily Telegraph could, had her complexion been sunburned, have easily passed at the age of eighty for the late queen. Louis Philippe's double, an Italian named Chippini, emigrated to the Cape. I have somewhere a letter dictated by the late Lord Newborough to his son and addressed to me, in which his lordship stated that the first time he saw the citizen king he exclaimed, "What an image of Chippini!" and could not keep his eyes from following him for a whole evening.

In history we have the false Smerdis. Different impostors passed themselves off as Sebastian, king of Portugal, who was believed to have been killed in a battle with the Moors in Morocco. Miss Jane Porter early in the last century revived the legend in a novel. She sided with those who held Sebastian to have been wounded only and hunted down by Philip II. of Spain, who seized on his heritage. Three "false Joans of Arc" appeared in the six years following that of her execution. Two of them avoided every one who had known her—Paris Cor, London Truth.

Cure For the Blues.

An Atchison girl said goodby to her dearest beloved, who was going away to be gone two months. It was a painful ordeal, for with floods, fevers, railroad accidents and other women there was no telling if she would ever see him again.

She sobbed till the sound of his footsteps had died away, when, feeling that she needed something to sustain her, she went out to the icebox and ate a plate of cold ham, three pieces of fried chicken, half a cake and a piece of blackberry pie and drank three bottles of ginger ale. Then she went up, slept well and happy that she found time to write him a letter telling him she was wretched without him.—Atchison Globe.

Disarmed.

By this time the controversy had reached the stage of personalities.

"I don't wonder the baby is fretful and irritable sometimes," exclaimed Mrs. Ferguson shrilly. "She inherits your disposition!"

"Perhaps she does, madam," recklessly retorted Mr. Ferguson. "Perhaps she does. But she inherits your looks."

"Bless her heart, so she does!" said his wife, catching the baby in her arms and crooning over the cherub. "George, dear, I take it all back!"

Then, manlike, he went out and gloated over this, as if he had won a victory by superior shrewdness.—Chicago Tribune.

BILIOUSNESS AND CONSTIPATION CURED BY THEDFORD'S BLACK-DRAGHT

Because the liver is neglected people suffer with constipation, biliousness, headache and fever, cold attacks take hold of the system. It is safe to say that 20% of the population are kept in proper working order, ill-effects would be almost unknown.

Thedford's Black-Dragee is so successful in curing such sickness because it is without a rival as a liver regulator. This great family medicine is not a strong and drastic drug, but a mild and beautiful laxative that cures constipation and may be taken by a mere child without possible harm.

The healthful action on the liver cures biliousness. It has an invigorating effect on the kidneys. Because the liver and kidneys do not work regularly, the poisonous acids along with the waste from the body get back into the blood and vitiate the entire system.

Timely treatment with Thedford's Black-Dragee removes the poisons which lurk inconstipation, liver and kidney troubles, and will positively furnish the knowledge of Bright's disease, for which disease in advanced stages there is no cure. Ask your dealer for a 25c. package of Thedford's Black-Dragee.

What to Buy For Gifts

Often proves a puzzling question at the approach of the Christmas season. This is not only true for gentlemen, but for ladies as well. Our stock has been selected in view of this and contains many new attractive and useful presents, but not too expensive.

A FALSE PROPHECY

Awakening from a state of lethargy, Comte Raymond de Villemere beheld his doctor gazing on him sadly.

"Saved once more!" breathed the comte, and he smiled as he stretched out his arms.

"My poor friend," sighed the doctor.

The sick man stared aghast.

"Pull yourself together," he continued. "You are a man who can stand the truth."

"What do you mean?"

"Your symptoms are those of the noma."

"Of what?"

"A curious plague. When the state of lethargy is over, the patient has three lucid hours, at the end of which he dies suddenly."

"Why?"

"Now, look here, keep your spirits up, like the plucky fellow you are! After all is said and done life is not worth living for. Goodby—goodby, my poor friend—goodby."

Ten minutes later the comte had risen. Clad in his flannel smoking jacket, he was putting the last touches to his toilet. The doctor had withdrawn, that his friend might have time to settle his worldly affairs.

The day before, so soon as he was taken with fever—he had made up his mind to prepare for the worst—he had sent for his lawyer and for a priest and destroyed all his letters. Then he had laid down his giddy head and fallen asleep with the conviction that he would not awake again before doomsday.

But now he was like a condemned man who, after having made sure of a reprieve, found himself suddenly on the way to the scaffold.

Tomorrow the joys and friendly ties of his whole life would be gone forever.

While he was finishing his cigar, reclining listlessly on the cushions of his divan, Raymond saw all his life flit past him as in a dream. Nearly forgotten episodes of his childhood cropped up as if they were quite recent. Then in rapid succession his mind dwelt on the many times he had fallen in love between fifteen and twenty-five until he came to the first month of his married life.

How full of unmitigated joy those days had been! Raymond remembered the minutest events of his honeymoon or moons spent in fun and frolic with pleasant excursions, varying on bachelor's dissipation and freaks which made lively gossip for fashionable folk. Delighted beyond measure by the admiration which his wife excited wherever he took her, he was more madly in love after his marriage than before. He would have been jealous if the mere possibility of such a thing could have been seriously entertained by either of them.

And all this passionate love had been brought to an end by a scandalous separation owing to a blunder on his part and a rash escapade of the little comtesse.

By mutual consent they had separated. Yet, strange to say, their love for each other had continued. So far as the world was concerned, their relations were restricted by icy bows whenever they met on the boulevards, but their professed indifference for each other scarcely deceived their common friends.

The idea of dying without having seen once more the woman he loved above all others appeared preposterous to the comte. Studied obstinacy and stern resolve seemed to be altogether out of place when brought face to face with everlasting separation.

What risk did he run now in attempting a reconciliation even if it were not to succeed?

Raymond sprang to his feet and seating himself before his writing desk scribbled hurriedly a short telegram and sent it off by his valet.

He looked at his watch. He had two hours more to live. The comtesse would have time to come.

Would she come? Would she be touched by a note containing a dying man's farewell? Or, in the relentless dignity of offended woman, would she refuse to forgive even under these solemn circumstances?

The anguish of uncertainty, added to the moral torture, made Raymond vince despite all his nerve and resolution to take his inevitable fate coolly. With something very like terror he eyed the fleeting minutes which separated him from eternity.

Another hour flew away while he was getting ready to die, stopping now and then to muse with melancholy on his past life. He wrote to his mother of his early life, and as he did so tears came to his eyes.

Suddenly Raymond started at the sound of the electric bell. After a few seconds of wild expectation the door was opened and the servant ushered in—

"Monsieur la Comtesse de Villemere!"

He rose from his seat very pale. "Odette!" he exclaimed.

But the young woman remained standing on the threshold, her features contracted with anger.

"This is a most shameless trick, sir."

"A trick! What do you mean?"

"You wrote me word that you were dying, and I find you up and well, writing your letters. Good-by, sir."

"Odette! Do let me explain."

One word only. And as she was leaving the comte dashed up from his desk the letter he was writing to his mother and held it out to her. "Read this before leaving," he gasped.

She took the letter, glanced at the first few lines and then fell on Raymond's neck, sobbing.

"Poor boy! It was the truth."

For a few minutes they remained clasped in each other's arms, full of passion and pain, giving mutual expression to the memory of the happy months they had spent together and to remorse for the year of happiness they had lost by their separation.

They sat down close to one another, hand in hand, completely overcome by their feelings.

At last the comte bestowed himself of his forebodings, one of whom had climbed the steps of the scaffold in 1793 whistling a tune from the "Indes Galantes."

"Well, never mind," said he, with a smile. "I suppose I ought not to complain. I am dying of a complaint which will be fashionable tomorrow."

But Odette looked at him reproachfully, and he did not continue. Women have no taste for irony.

They chatted about old times, at first almost in a whisper, as if they were in a room where death had stricken down a fellow creature. Then by degrees the remembrance of better days brought to mind a little incident which made their lips smile, while their eyes sought sight on the wall of some object recalling particulars of the life they had led formerly, such as the pictures of a chase, which evoked the sounds of the huntsman's horn as it rent in flowing gladness the November mist, and they dwelt with pleasure on the day when they had cantered side by side, rustling the brown leaves which covered the forest path.

Miniature fans, dusty accessories of charming cotillions, reminded them of a German waltz which they had danced before their marriage and how they had flirted the same evening under the palm trees of the hothouse.

They lived over again their rides in the Bois de Boulogne under the green, shady boughs when they were like two boys out for a spree, breakfasting at the Pavillon Chinois and coming back through the Champs Elysees to take their part in the exuberant life of the gay city. They would part for a few hours yearning to meet again—after being bored at the club and at 6 o'clock tea—in their box at the opera or in the theatre of their home.

Raymond and Odette were so absorbed by these old souvenirs that they became oblivious of time and of the terrible circumstances which had brought them together again.

The bell rang. They awoke to painful reality and exchanged a horrible look of anguish.

"Dr. Darciols!" announced the valet.

"Why, you do not mean to say you are out of bed?" said the medical man, with an amazed countenance. "I was coming to—"

"You were coming?"

"Yes, really, I don't see why I should not tell the truth now that, thank God, I was mistaken. I was coming to make quite sure you were dead."

"Quite obliged," smiled the comte.

"Then he is out of danger?" inquired Odette anxiously.

"There is no question about it. But it is certainly very odd, for the Echo des Cliniques published yesterday an exhaustive description of the noma. Nevertheless pray be assured that I am very happy."

Unquestionably the doctor was very happy. At the same time if he had told the truth he would have admitted that he was rather vexed at having been such a bad prophet.

"Odette," suggested Raymond in a whisper, "do you think we might ask him to dinner with us in the evening?"—From the French in Strand Magazine.

The Sleeping Powders.

The Doctor—Yes, I understand what ails you; you can't sleep. Take this prescription to the druggist. (Next day.) Good morning; you look better today. Have you slept well?

Petersen—Like a top. I feel like a new man.

Doctor—How many sleeping powders did you take?

Petersen (surprised)—I didn't take any. I gave a couple of them to the baby.

A Good Catch.

Here is a "catch" that is always sure to cause much laughter when the simple answer is announced after everybody has given it up:

If as many women stood before me as there are drops in the rainy sea, and I was told that I must try without a ship to transport them dry, how, oh, how, would I ever do it? Please tell me if you ever knew it.

After everybody gives it up tell the party that if as many women were there as there are drops in the sea you would simply put a drop on each woman's tongue and there would be no more sea.

Four Things to Guess.

What aunts are most unpleasant to have in the house? Discordance.

What is it that flies high, flies low, has no feet and yet wears shoes? Dust.

Can you tell of what nationality Napoleon was? Of course I can (Corsican).

If you throw a man out of the window, what does he fall against? Against his will.

Manufacturers' and commission merchants' season is at an end for this year. Consequently the balance of stock remaining is thrown on the market, closed out for a mere song, on that account. These goods are bought in the open market for cash, and are prepared to close the season's business with heavy losses.
